Hydrate of Chloral.

The drug that was to revolutionize the modern medical system is fulfilling its work in a different way with alarming rapidity. In 1869, hydrate of chloral sold for $80 a pound; so that each "sleep" produced by it cost, at wholesale prices $1. Now a German chemical actory sells it for $2 per pound. Its use as a narcotic has attained enormous proportions. According to official statistics, within the last eighteen months four dealers have sold, in England, forty tons, enough to put 36,000,000 people to sleep. The new drug is more dangerous than the old, because the system gradually becomes callous to the effects of cooling, while every dose of chlorely fects of opium, while every dose of chloral makes it more sensitive. A dose of 180 grains would be fatal; but, in the establish-ments we have mentioned, the ordinary allowance is stated at 120 grains.

The End of a Tear.

A Danbury man distinguished himself the other evening by going on what is enigmatically designated a "tear," and while thus located unconsciously inviting some thirty or forty persons to dine with him the next day. When he arrived home from the store at noon he was startled to find various strange people carelessly strewn from the gate to the stoop, and spread out on the yard in groups of twos and threes. The first impression was that something sickening had happened, but upon learning the true state of affairs he was so overpowered by gratitude that he cheerfully engaged with his estimable wife in pouring hot water on those of the assembly who seemed impervious to milder arguments.

A Mild Exceriation. A San Francisco paper is put out of benevolence by a little fun at its expense, and says: "We regard the atrocious correspondent as an infernal fiend, a false-tongued midnight monster, red-handed assassin, a thief, a he-schoolmarm, a fraud, a ghost, and an unlessent person! We exteen him a peapleasant person! We esteem him a pea-green demon of the steaming pit, with a cot-tonwood tail, eyes in his sides, and a cork neck studded with hot door knobs! If there is anything worse than this, we think him

Vaccination in Infancy.

A statement issued by the Medical Department of the Privy Council of England says: "By vaccination in infancy, if thoroughly well performed and successful, most people are completely insured, for their whole lifetime, against the attack of small-pox, and in the proportionately few cases where the protection is less complete, small-pox, if it be caught, will in consequence of the vaccination, be so mild a disease as not to threaten death or disfigurement."

Fashion Among African Ladies.

The Felatah ladies in Central Africa spend several hours a day over their toilet. In fact they begin over night by carefully wrapping their fingers and toes in henna leaves, so that by morning they are a beautiful purple. The teeth are stained alternately blue, yellow and purple, one here and there being left of its natural color, as a contrast. About the eyes they are very particular. They pencil them with sulphuret of antimony.

Watch Your Horses' Feet.

The feet of a horse need more care than the body. They need ten times as much, for in one respect they are almost the entire horse. All the grooming that can be done won't avail anything if the horse is forced to stand where his feet will be filthy. In this case the feet will become disordered, and

THE Republican Conventions of Iowa and Ohio met yesterday and instructed their delegates to vote for General Grant's nomination.

THE inmates of the National Soldier' Home at Dayton, O., will probably be allowed to vote by a special act of the Legislature. Heretofore they have been disfranchised on the grounds that they were not citizens of the State.

Colrax's numerous retirements have borne fruit, and his path to renomination will not be a flowery one. Ohio yesterday instructed for ex-Governor Dennison for Vice President, and Iowa instructed for James F. Wilson, of Massachusetts, will be in the field also, and Mr Colfax may have an opportunity to engage in the manufacturing pursuits to which he is wedded.

Ir is announced that the New York Times is hunting for an editor. We don't know any paper that needs one more Its war upon Tammany was a noble fight and won it many friends, but it bids fair to lose them all by its scurrilous abuse, misrepresentation and falsification of every man who does not think just as the Times does. It has been very dull and heavy in its news departments ever since Mr. Raymond died, and if it adds to that the reputation of being a common scold it will soon lose what influence in has.

Some short-sighted individuals are lamentmenting because there is so much specula-tion and activity in the real estate market. We confess that we see nothing in it but growth and prosperity for our city.—[Jour-

Indeed? You then see things very differently now than you did a week ago, when you declared that "the present spec-"ulative fever in real estate must soon "abate" if a coal road was not built, and tried to drive off purchasers of real estate. Your opinion in regard to real estate have changed almost as suddenly as they did in regard to the administration. Anvthing else you would like to confess?

THE only way to induce the Ohio Falls Car Works, or any other manufacturing enterprise, to locate here by payment of a subsidy is to raise the money by private subscription. The holders of rea who will receive the greatest benefit, and those who feel interested in the growth of business should make an out and out do nation. If they are willing to be taxed for that purpose why not give the money outright and dispense with all the complications that would arise from the city going into the money lending business We are ready to pay two per cent. upon our taxables for such purposes. Will others do as much?

ANOTHER jobber has been stripped of his covering of sham honesty and shown up to the public in his true character by the New York Tribune. The man is H. & Bowen, proprietor of the New York Independent, probably the most venal sheet in the country, and which drives a thriving trade in its pretended piety. Its columns are bought and sold like sheep in a market. Bowen, who is now a great supporter of the Administration, had a share in the general order business in New York City ten years ago, and farmed out his privilege to other parties for one-third of their receipts, the conse quence of which was a system of extortion not much better than Leet's.

THE beauty of our political system receives an illustration this morning in a dispatch from Charleston, South Carolina, which says that a number of delegates to the Philadelphia Convention are about to go to Washington to demand the removal of several government officials, including the Collector and Postmaster of Charleston. These men, carpet-baggers, most likely, having secured positions in which they can exercise some power, propose to turn it to profit at once. The removal of the officers named will probably be de-manded as the price of their unqualified support. They will probably get what they want. Under a good system of civil service such shameful jobbery would be impossible.

The Halted Treaty.

During the trial of Warren Hastings the Lords withdrew to discuss every question of the admissibility of evidence or applicability of law that was raised, and the case came to a halt till the question was decided, whereupon a wag remarked that "though the Court kept going the impeachment stood still." The Washington treaty is in much the same predicament. The discussion keeps going, but the business stands still. We are no nearer a settlement now than we were when Earl Russell peremptorily refused to listen to our claim for even direct damages from the Alabama's depredations. The treaty would settle everything if it didn't need settling itself, but instead of deciding old disputes it raises new ones, to hear the case. We have presented our side, not in the best form or taste possible, but plainly enough. The English object to it. Says Lord Granville: "We don't understand that the treaty covers, or was intended to cover, indirect damages, and we want you to think about it." Says Mr. Fish: "The treaty don't exclude indirect damages. We have 'thought about it,' and think we have a right to present our side of the case completely, and indirect damages are part of it. We want the Court to take up and decide everything in the affair." And there it stands. We have very little hope that it will move a step nearer settlement till English necessity forces it. In the present temper of the people and government the Geneva Court will have as little to do as some of the Tammany supernumeraries unless we consent to trim our case down to their pattern. That is as unlikely a bit of pruning as can be found in the whole field of diplomatic cultivation. We should have lost nothing, either in money or self-respect, by making no claim for indirect damages, for in the best view for us they constitute an unprecedented demand. startling in character and ruinous in amount, if Sumner's wild estimate was to fix them, and not to do what never had been done before could have been made no reproach to us. But still there is an mmovable foundation of common sense n the demand as we put it. "It don't natter whether the claim is valid or not. The Court was not appointed to decide only upon claims admitted to be valid. We have a right, inasmuch as we did not disclaim it formally, to get an authoritative decision upon its validity." It is hard to repel a proposition to submit a lisputed point to an impartial tribunal. But this is just what the English have to do, and it is just where we have the advantage. We are willing to leave it to a Court of their own making as much as of ours, and they are not. Something of the asperity that marked the earlier discussions of the matter by the English press has faded out, mainly under the gentle "rubbing in" of the impression-correct enough-that nobody in this country has, or ever had, the remotest idea of demanding payment of the expenses of the war for two years, and for he losses entailed by the transfer of our ommerce to England, as Mr. Sumner nggested at the outset. The four hunred millions of pounds sterling of Engsh apprehension have dwindled to a um within easy reach of Mr. Robert owe's budget. And the Bull bellows ith a dove-like softness of cadence that hows an intimate sympathy between his oice and his pocket. Our late Consul Genral at London, Mr. F. H. Morse, publishd a letter in the Times of that city on the th of this month, in which he alluded to he toning down of English feeling under he influence of a better knowledge of ur claims, and the Times in its comments ecepts him "as the spokesman of his nore thoughtful and educated countrynen" when he says "that the people of he United States seek no vindictive jamages, and would approve no sharp ractice in dealing with a friendly power till it yields nothing but its temper. It milder, but not a whit more disposed to ubmit to arbitration on the question of ndirect damages. "These things," says, "augur a temperate discussion of our differences and an amicable terminaion of them." But, to our apprehension, nowever "temperate" may be the discussion the augury from English conduct is not that the "termination" will be "amicaole." but that it will never be at all. For the Times closes its felicitations on the moderation of our press and the reduction of ur claims, by saying: "Whatever, therefore, may be the dispo-ition of the President and his advisers, if they decide to maintain the interpretation to which we object, to withdraw nothing they have advanced, and to go to the Geneva tri unal with their fifth claim as well as the ther four, we shall have no alternative but declare the reference inadmissible. That is, the treaty is at an end, the aroitration abandoned, and the question of neutral and belligerent rights left just where it was when the Kearsarge sunk he Alabama. We can't see but that it is better for us than England to leave the matter in this shape. We can do very well with the interpretation of neutral rights and neutral piracy derived from ner action, and she can't. It will cost us nothing to wait till she finds this out, and when she makes the discovery she will be ready to let some arbitrator or other pass upon the whole of our case as we have made it, as well as upon the whole of her's as she may make that.

Location of Consciousness. A farmer sitting upon a barrel with his feet bracing the foreboard of a wagon, which unfortunately gave way, fell directly down behind the horse on on a smart trot. Sud-denly frightened, the alarmed animal kicked back in a way that the the cork of his shoe took off the whole frontal bone of the man's skull together with the anterior lobes of the brain level with the eyes. Both optic nerves were exposed, as well as the olfactories. He lived several hours, entirely without pain, minutely describing the accident.

A nursing child was on exhibition some years ago at New Orleans, whose head was so normously distended with water, it was mearly as large as a gallon jug. The brain was a complete sack, the bones being forced apart at all the sutures; yet in that anomalous condition it was not much unlike the children of that age, being actively conscious. Next, a railroad overseer at Cavendish, Ver nont, about twenty years since, had an iron bar four feet long by an inch square carried clear through his head from one end to the other and many rods beyond, by an explosion of a charge he was tamping. Without pain or loss of consciousness, he eventually recovered, dying ultimately in California. A question for scientists: Where is the location

A Question.

I break all slighter bonds, nor feel One shadow of regret; Is there one link within the past That holds thy spirit yet?
Or is thy faith so clear and free, As that which I can pledge to thee

Look deeper still-if thou caust feel, Within thy imnost soul,
That thou hast kept a portion back
While I have staked the whole—

I strain mine ears to listen. But one stray note of music
May sound in all the land.
"Why art thou mute, O blackbird?
O thrush, why dost not sing?
Ah! surely they are waiting,

Waiting for the Spring. O heart! thy days are darksome: Soon every bird shall sing: Let them be silent waiting, Waiting for the Spring.

HELMBOLD.

Success too Much for Him-A Warning to Young Men.

[From Pomeroy's Democrat.] Who has not heard of Helmbold-H. T Helmbold, the celebrated advertiser, maker and dealer in remedies for shattered constitutions and other patent medicines warrant ed to benefit the world at large? Not long since he cut the biggest splurge in New York; but now the places that knew him promise to know him no more. There has come a change in his fortunes, a tide in his affairs which has swept him not only away from the business places he once haunted, out across the wide ocean to the shores of a foreign country.

His large and beautifully-fitted store on Broadway, for so many years a prominent landmark, is closed. No more are to be seen crowds of customers, or creditors for that matter, entering or coming out from the vast concern wherein so long the lively little doctor dispensed patronage to papers and patent nedicines to the public.

Why this failure? Letters come from ve rious parts of the country asking if Helmbold has failed, and if so, why? Those who pass along the street, noticing the store to be closed, ask why a man of the wealth and busness of Helmbold should thus suddenly pass from sight?

Helmbold's success in business was wonderful. He was that paradox known as the self-made creature of circumstances. Possessed of great pluck, and more than ordinary ingenuity, he advertised in nearly every paper of the country. It is safe to say that within the past ten years he paid the press of the United States not less than $3,000,000 for advertising. When he began business the remedies put up by him were prepared with great care and possessed genuine merit. As he was bold and liberal the press and the peo ple stood by him. His was not a passive pol icy, but an aggressive one into the business circles of the city and country. He pro-claimed from the house-tops, hill-tops, points of rocks, sides of barns, ends of bridges, rails of fences, columns of newspapers-from all places where an advertisement could be placed—the virtues of Helmbold's prepara-ions. His became an household name ions.

throughout the land. Flushed with that success which always attends well directed effort, judicious and liberal advertising, he ran into extravagance His failure was not the result of over-adver tising, but the result of injudicious living and that dissipation which has carried so many thousands—aye, millions of men to ruin and premature graves. He fell into the error of believing that show, vain display, tinsel and tast living marked the man of business. When beginning in life he set good examples to business men, and prosperity marked his course. When enjoying that fo tune which enterprise and pluck brought to his pocket, he commenced setting bad exam-ples to the young business men of the country; when that fortune which had smiled upon his honest and honorable efforts, de-serted him and punished him—a warning to every business man in the land.

Wherever he went it was for display. turn-out, costing between thirty and fifty thousand dollars, conveyed him from store to dwelling house, and up and down the drives of Central Park. He flaunted his extravagant gew-gaws in the face of plodding, espectable and respected business men, ex pacting them to follow his example. He lived for style, for show, and a display of that wealth which had been so liberally bestowed upon him by the people. His disbursement were not with an eye to charity, or with a view to help the deserving industrious, struggling in garrets, cellars and by-places, in manufactories and on farms, but simply for his own gratification. The motive was a self-ish one; the result a downfall.

As he found abundant money in his pock ets, his great desire was to become a good fellow. So he drank liberally. Where he was, champagne flowed like water. He enertained with princely hand; but the enter terialment was not complete, especially at fashionable restaurant or drinking place, unless there was dissipation and drunkenn companying it. He essayed to be one of the leaders or fast fashion at Long Branch. He lived more upon the froth than the solid meats of life. With there has been uninterrupted sleighing on the ice of the Mississippi river at that place one's friends so long as his money lasts, but no longer, between the wine-cup and the card-table, the fortune he had made by advertising and careful attention to busing

He went down, not from misfortune, but from dissipation; lower and lower in this terrible whirlpool he went, till men everywhere shook their heads and said one to another.

Oft and oft have his triends begged him to esist, be himself and abstain from that which intoxicates. Pope Pius Makes a Little Speech. [N. Y. Telegram to Cin. Gazette.]

A letter from Florence, Italy, says Pius the Ninth recently received a deputation of the doman aristocracy, and pronounced a dis ourse which is universally regarded as pos sessing unusual significance. Of special importance is a passage relative to the French Assembly, and the debate upon the Catholic petitions which, within a few days, will take place in that body, and is expected definitely to determine the status of the French Em bassy to the Court of Victor Emmanuel. After dwelling at length upon the three temptations with which Satan assailed the Saviour, the Pope said: "These things repeat themselves in our day. The demon has presented himself before the revolution, and has said to it, 'if thou wilt prostrate thyself at my feet, I will give thee these kingdoms, these empires, these provinces.' It is not alone to Italy that he has appeared, but also to other countries and to other places that are well known. The demon has come. sacrilegious compact has been accepted accepted but too well. The compact was that aliens should become masters of this peninsula upon condition that they should persecute the church, disfigure, persecute her ministers, scatter blasphemy everywhere, upon condition that they should disseminate immorality with full hand in all places. They have adored Satan, and received the kingdom, but a kingdom which shall not last, which shall be fearful even to themselves. They have adored, but this adorasequences. Oh, if I had the mission of Leo the Great, of that grand pontiff who presented himself to Attilla, I would have gone before the revolution and the revolutionists, foot within the walls of this holy city; ob serve a moment with me the lasting conse quences of this sacrilegious occupation; then nount to the Campagnola and enter the other toly places of this city. God suffering it, you will enter, but will you therefore have gained anything? You will maintain yourselves here, but not long. You will be able to destroy, but not erect. You will enter to diffuse within these holy walls every species of iniquity. You will enter to prepare the way for the most awful scourges, that shall strike also yourselves, and you will be the victims of your own ambition. You will consummate your final ruin, and will prepare your own tomb.'

An Elopement Prevented by a Snow-

The Minneapolis, Minn., Tribune tells story of a young girl of that city who was deluded by the oracular prophecies of a fortune-teller into looking for her future lover and husband in the first young fellow who should respond to her smiles among those who crossed the Suspension Bridge. She made a good many promenades before the presages of the sybil were realized. At last young booby verified the foreshadowings of the prophetess by responding sweetly to her smiles, and he followed up the suit with ardor. He was, however, forbidden the house by her parents; but as this only fulnlied the predictions of the fortune teller that the match would meet with opposition and be succeeded by parental forgiveness and a sequel of bliss, it only confirmed the lovers in their devotion. Stolen interviews ended in a plan of elopement. All the arrangements were made, when the recent heavy tution of a cutter for the original wheeled vehicle. At the appointed hour at night the lover appeared with his rig. A low whistle was soon answered by the girl, who stole out of the door dressed for a journey. Unfor-tunately she stumbled and fell immersed in the deep snow, and of course did what girls are apt to do on such occasions, shrieked.
This woke up the old man, who forthwith appeared and dragged the girl into the house.
The young booby fled. It is interesting to know that she subsequently discovered that her lover, while protesting eternal fidelity to her, had been in very ardent correspondence with other young ladies, and that this revelation of his faithlessness effectually cured her passion.

A Bad Year for Amateur Papers. [From the Lafayette Journal.]

This is a bad year for amateur newspaper and for those of only medium ability. The weak bantlings are dying off rapidly. The Atlanta New Era has just been added to the company of the Louisville Ledger, and Louisville Sun in the land of newspapers departed. A great many well-meaning people think that the proper management of a newspaper is a comparatively easy matter; and it takes a good deal of expensive experience, and one or two failures, to convince such of their matter. their mistake. How long, we wonder, will it be before people learn that the ability to conduct a newspaper so as to make it popu-lar, influential and profitable, is more than a gift. It requires not only abilities, such as would yield an equal or greater return if employed in another direction, but also a thorough education in the business. The sooner it is understood that it takes industry, energy and capacity of the very highest order to conduct successfully a daily newspaper establishment, the sooner will expensive experiments in this field cease.

Terrible Persecution of the Jews in Roumania.

A correspondent writes to the London papers: The latest news from Roumania is truly heart-rending. Great as have been the cruelties committed at Ismail, they were by far exceeded by the horrors perpetrated at Cahul. This is a town with a population of about 7,000, 1,000 of whom are Jews. These were suddenly set upon by their fellow-townsmen, and for three days beaten, wounded, plundered, driven out of their houses, which were battered to ruins, and the tenwhich were battered to ruins, and the ten-ants forced to take refuge in the barracks, where, instead of being defended, they were allowed again to be beaten, and for several days left without food. In these tumults heads were split open, arms broken, beards plucked out by the roots, and rapes committed. One of the sufferers, named Gold, more courageous than the other victims, defended his house for three days, his four sons standing by him. He made them swear that, should he fall, they would continue to fight. The bands surrounding his house were for a considerable time held at bay by these brave men, but they were at last compelled to give way, as the villains set fire to the premises. The damage inflicted by these Jews is valued at 40,000 ducats. The two synagogues were devastated and filthily polluted, and the sacred objects found scattered in all directions. The sufferings of the Jews were horrible, Language fails to depict what they had to endure. There is scarcely a village in the whole of Bessarabian Roumania where there have not been frightful scenes. The misery is dreadful; help is needed immediately.

Barbarians in New Jersey.

Sufferens is the name of a station on the Eric Railroad in New Jersey, a suburban station, the home of many a city merchant. In the mountains, but a tolerable walk from the villages of the valley, he will find an American community with nearly the least possible that is human, save the form; without civilization or organization of the lowest order, even so much as gipsies; without arts above the arts of savages—hunting, charcoal burning, and making baskets, wooden brooms and the like, without hope, or enterprise, or industry for anything better or beyond the in-stant demands of the animal nature; without stant demands of the animal nature; without a line of the simplest literature, or least idea of written language or nunerals, without a trace of the Bible, of Christianity, or of any sort of religion or deity; nay, almost without language, their patois being so scanty as well as disorganized that only the commonest of facts, and those with difficulty, are communicated by it. There is, of course, nothing worthy the name of marriage or family among them. Three surnames, it is said, suffice for three quarters of the race. Their bearing is abject and spiritless, their faces stolid, their glances furtive, and their conduct timorous. Nobody knows or cares how they live, how they are born, or by what means they die, or how they are buried, in means they die, or how they are buried, in their savage isolation.

强烈!! The Original Watch.

The watch was originally, we find, a comparatively huge and "bungling" thing, and was moved by weights—in short, it was only a "little clock." a "pocket edition" thereof, as it were. Its case was at first made of iron, as it were. Its case was at first made of iron, and on account of the weights it had to be borne about in a suspended position, as by a cord about the neck, hanging down on the breast. It was only a little over three centuries ago, about the year 1555, that the spring was devised, doing away with weights, and rendering the instrument more readily and safely portable. These springs were then only straight pieces of steel, not coiled as now, and occupying more space. The as now, and occupying more space. The watch of those days had but one index or hand, and required to be wound often, two or three times a day. The faces or dials were of metal, brass usually, and the cases were without crystals, but opened in front and at the back, not unlike the "hunting watch" of loday. The case was found in the back in the back of the case was found for the case were without crystals. hardly tolerate. As may be readily conjectured, the watch of those times was a very costly affair, worth more than many a New England farm now is, and requiring a long time in its construction. It is computed that the average value of the watches of those days was equivalent to $1,500 of our currency.—(Exchange.)

A Great Inducement.

A woman's paper published in Tennessee endeavors to put in practice some of its own principles by graduating its terms of subscription thus: "$3 a year to men, $1 50 scription thus; "$\frac{3}{2}$ a year to men, $1.50 to unmarried working women, and seventy five cents to women with lazy husbands to support." The discouragement to men involved in these terms is all right, but the premium put upon lazy husbands doesn't seem to be just the thing. Who would not seem to be just the thing. Who would not have a lazy husband to support if she could thereby obtain all the benefits of this work agond deal.

The novel sale of the Hendricks property, or Woodruff's addition, closes this week and already the buyers of lots exhibit much excitement. According to the plan no one can choose a lot, his number is drawn for him, and he runs the chance of getting the residence or the stable, each of which is worth a good deal. man's paper for seventy-five cents?

The National Hotel is being refitted. The street cleaners are abroad in full

What has the Sentinel got against the Street Commissioner? The County Clerk's office was the scene of wedding last evening. The mammoth clock in front of Herron's jewelry store is nearly completed. Since the organization of the Superior Court 1,518 cases have been filed in it.

For the first time in several months all the railroad trains arrived on time last night. The celebration of the opening of White river bridge has been indefinitely postponed.

The March term of the Superior Court comprised twenty-one days, in which 120 cases were disposed of. Merchants here have offered the State Board of Agriculture about $1,000 in special premiums for the next State Fair. The Sentinel says three policy shops are are now running here. Why don't the police raid them as gambling houses? The Northern Penitentiary drew $10,727 94 vesterday for the expenses of the last quarter.

The receipts about equal the expenditures. The alarm of fire last night from the cor ner of West and California street was caused by the burning of a chimney at W. P. Bing. ham's residence.

Mr. Julius Balke, informed a reporter last night that he intended to establish a branch of his Cincinnati billiard table manufactory in this city at an early date.

Mr. Henry W. Tutewiler and wife left the city yesterday for an extensive trip South, to New Orleans and Texas. He goes in search of health, and we hope may find it.

A water main on South Meridian street, between Georgia and Washington, burst vesterday afternoon, rendering eight tire-plugs in that neighborhood valueless for the time. The front of Root's building on East Washington street is being torn down to make room for an iron one, which Mr. R. declares will be the handsomest one in the

The Council meets to-night to consider the proposition to appropriate $125,000 as a loan to taxpayers to secure the Ohio Falls Car Works. As no adequate petition has been prepared, the Council will probably adjourn.

Phil, Fahrbach's Washington Hall billiard saloon was opened last night by Tieman, of Cincinnati, Harry Choate, champion of Ohio, Parker Byers, Jack Garratt and other good players. The room has been handsomely refitted and new tables put in. Louis Lang gives an opening to-night, at which several fine games will be played.

Amusement Matters.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.-The performance tonight will be the last evening presentation of "Schneider," and that of Saturday afternoon positively its last during the present engagement of the Allen company. To-morrow evening the company appears in Terre Haute. Those of our theater patrons who have not yet laughed over the drolleries of Schneider and Little Mack, should not neglect one of these last opportunities. Saturday evening, 'Nobody's House."

To-morrow evening, as heretofore meutioned, Anna Dickinson lectures on "Demagogues and Working Men," a lecture never before delivered in this city. The unprecedented sale of seats indicates a large attendance.

Sociable.—The people of the North Baptist Church held a social at their chapel, corner of Broadway and Cherry streets last evening, which was well attended, every one enjoying themselves as usual. The exercises consist ed of characters, singing, "The Budget Box," a speech on "Sociables" by the Pastor, which was highly interesting, and the recitation of "The Old Story," by Miss Isa Gillett, which was finely delivered. The next sociable will be held at the residence of Mr. W. W. Woollen. No. 13 College avenue, two weeks from last evening.

Relief of the Poor.

The Ladies's Society for the Relief of the Poor report that since the 17th of January last it has distributed to the poor and destitute of the city, wearing apparel, etc., as follows: Garments manufactured by society, 51 pieces; calico, 3114 yards; cloth, 414 yards; mushin, 1814 yards; flannel, 20 yards; to-day, The case was from five six inches in diameter—a fashion which modern indisposition to "bear about large weights" would pairs; shoes, 43 pairs; groceries, $156 14. Canton flannel, 12½ yards; stockings, 17 pairs; shoes, 43 pairs; groceries, $156 14.
The society also added to its funds by making and selling the following articles: 12 toilets sets, 24 aprons (fancy and plain) and 8 garments. And, desiring to add to its means of usefulness in a similar manner in future, it respectfully announces that all future, it respectfully announces that all work in the way of substantial wear or fancy articles intrusted to it, will be well and promptly done and at fair prices.

The I., B. & W. B. R.

Speaking of this very important line, the incinnati Commercial of the 25th has the following. The suggestion of an excursion has already been eagerly accepted by one of our contemporaries always on the look out for such things:

"It is doubtful if our business men are as fully alive as they should be to the value of the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western Railway to the trade of our city, notwith-standing the fact that its freight traffic has grown with extraordinary rapidity. The road has a peculiarly advantageous location, traversing, as it does, nearly a middle course between Chicago and St. Louis, and striking the Mississippi river at an important trade center, where are also in construction by the government the largest armory works in

No better country, agriculturally, is traversed by any road tributary to our city, besides which the northern part of the Indiana block coal territory is cut by it. A study of the course of the road on a map will interest all who are bidding for trade northwest of us; but more practical information doubtless could be had if the managers of the road would some fine day this spring run an excursion train through to Rock Island.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Real prosperity. When a gentleman cures a watch at Craft & Cutter's he feels that he is the happy possessor of a valuable piece of property. In fact it vindicates sense and appreciation of beauty and a knowledge that 24 East Washington street is the place to purchase fine gold and silverware.

That Ass Cramer.

[N. Y. Telegram to Cin. Commercial.] A Danish paper states that Rev. M. J. Cra mer, Minister to Denmark, and Grant's brother-in-law, is again the subject of com-mon-scandal. He recently caused his name to be proposed for membership in the Royal Club of Copenhagen, numbering three hun-dred members. For thirty years all foreign embassadors have been admitted, but the officers discovered that Cramer was certain to be blackballed and urged him to withdraw his application. He refused, and when a vote was taken all the votes were against him, except half a dozen, This enraged Cramer so much that he has repeatedly and publicly denounced the club as a set of aris-tocratic snobs, one of his quarrels being with a member in the vestibule of the Copenha gen Opera House. A large crowd witnessed the emeute, which was finally terminated by the police, Cramer disappearing amid the sneers and jeers of bystanders.

Proposed Suit Against the City.

An enterprising attorney of this city has just finished inspecting the City Court docket for the years 1865, '6, '7 and '8, for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of fines and costs paid into the City Treasury during that time by Rebecca Robb, keeper of a house of ill-fame. The amount so paid is found to be $891 60. It is proposed to commence suit against the city for the recovery of this amount, upon the grounds that the Supreme Court of Indiana has decided that a corporation can not fine such houses when located outside the corporate limits.

State conventions here do not seem to thrive this year. The Temperance Convention had fourteen attendants, we understand, and attractive stock of Plain, Striped and the Young Men's Christian Convention yesterday had twelve, one of whom was a woman. Which reminds us of a story of Chicago, B. F. (before fire), relating to a lone widow who publicly requested every Chris. tian in that city to send her ten cents, and when all had responded her wealth amounted to twenty cents!

These improvements STYLISH in the market. can not fail to greatly enhance all South Indianapolis property. Lots similarly located the same distance north from Washington street, are to-day selling for four times as much as is asked for those in this splendid addition. It is two squares nearer Washington street than Tinker street is. A special inducement is also offered to purchases in terms. Each lot is sold at $800, payable as follows: $200 cash, and $100 every six months from day of sale until the whole purchase money is paid; deferred payments to bear only six per cent. interest.

But the greatest inducement here offered to purchasers consists in the fact that every one buying a lot has a chance to become the owner of one of the improved ones. No purchaser buys any special lot, but after they are all disposed of the purchasers settle among themselves how they shall be appor-tioned, in some manner which will give each ne a square chance to become the possessor of one of the prize lots.

Property in this part of the town is daily increasing in value, and any of these lots can be sold within six months at a handsome advance on the prices above named.

Parties desiring to invest can get any information they may need from Messrs. Moth ershead & Joseph, real estate brokers (Sentinel Building), who will take pleasure in exhibiting plats of the property, and explaining the plan of the sale. Two-thirds of the lots are already taken, and the whole thing will be closed on Saturday of this week, so lose no time about it. The high character of the gentlemen who have this matter in hand is a sufficient guarantee of business and fair dealing.

(Concluded on Saturday.) Messrs. J. & P. Gramling, 35 East Washington street, are now ready for the spring trade with as elegant an assortment of neat, nobby and stylish spring styles of ready made clothing as there is to be found in the city of Indianapolis. Their stock of piece goods is large, attractive and varied and consist of the best patterns that there is to be temptingly low. No merchant tailor in the city has in the same length of time, made a better reputation and a larger trade than G. H. Heittation and a larger trade than G. H. Heit-kam, No. 8 West Washington street. His new up when the mental fires behind it were spring stock of ready made clothing is one of the finest and best assorted ever brought to Indianapolis.

Religious Bigotry

[From the N. Y. Tribune.] An instance of blind bigotry has occurred at Managua, in Nicaragua. Two Americans, Captain Cunningham and Mr. Simpson, were walking quietly through the streets, when they saw coming toward them a procession, consisting of a priest carried in a sedan chair, with the Holy Sacrament, and escorted by soldiers. They turned down a by-street in the direction their business led them, when suddenly one of the soldiers detached himself from the procession, and, running some forty yards out of his way to where they were without saying a word struck Mr. Simpson with his bayonet and made a savage thrust at Captain Cunningham, the bayonet passing through the nose and under the left eye, causing a severe wound. Both gentlemen had only been in the country a couple of weeks, and neither of them spoke a word of Spanish. They did not know it was necessary to take off their hats, more par-ticularly as they were some lifty yards from the street, down which the propassing, and both of them state that had any one asked them to take off their hats, or even made a sign to them, they would immediate ly have complied. On the fact becoming known to the Commandant he at once caused

[From the Omaha Herald.] Ten years ago we saw Thomas A. Scott behind a mountain of official documents in a room adjacent to that of Simon Cameron, Mr. Lincoln's then Secretary of War. He was Assistant Secretary, and was understood to have been brought to Washington on ac-count of his peculiar capacity and skill as an organizer of transportation. Mr. Scott was then a smoothfaced, unwrinkled young man, in the very flush and vigor of health, the glow of which was seen in the brilliant luster of his eye, and in the red glow which suffus ed his cheeks. His hair was rich in quantity and of a uniform brown color, and his form lithe and agile. This was in 1861. Last December we saw a short, stout-look ing man enter Mr. Cranagie's office on Broadway, with a carpet bag in his right hand, and a shawl in his left. His eye hadn't the old started with some business thought. He had grown much stouter, his hair, from being unmixed brown, had become mixed gray. The President of eleven thousand miles of American railway, and who is sighing for another railroad world to conquer, was the same Thomas A. Scott who was Cameron's Secretary in 1861, with about twenty years added to his age in ten. We regard Thomas A. Scott as the most notable suicide of his time. The greatest railway manager of his age and time is just as certainly killing himself with overtaxed mental labor, as that the cause given, the effect is sure to follow. With a physical frame of iron mould and fibre he can bear much, but rest twenty years before his natural time, he will be an exception to an almost universal rule. Our recent receipts of SPRING STYLES OF MER'S FURNISHING GOODS, include all the latest nov elties in scarfs, Ties. Bows, Silk and Linen Pocket Hankerchiefs, Half Hose, Suspenders, Gloves, Sleeve-Buttons and Studs, Collars, Cuffs,

TO THE PUBLIC.

A lew of the many reasons why the Citizens of Indianapolis and vicinity should patronize the Spencer Souse Ticket Office: A lew of the many reasons why the Citizens of Indianapolis and vicinity should patronize the Spencer House Ticket Office:

1st Because it is the only Ticket Office in the City of Indianapolis where the traveller can be furnished with any information in regard to the Shortest, Best and Quickest Routes from Indianapolis to all points, North, South, East and West.

2d. It is the only Railroad Ticket Office where you can be furnished with correct Time Cards of all the Railroads centering here, showing distances, time of arrival and leaving, and connections of all trains running into the Union Depot.

3d. It is the only Office in the city where you can get Tickets at Reduced Rates to all points, where competition is offered by rival lines.

4th. It is the only General Railroad Ticket Office where the public can see correct Railroad Maps, etc., and have the Shortest, Quickest, and Best Lines pointed out.

5th. It is the only Office where any inducement is offered to Emigration, either in Tickets or Freights; the only place where Emigration is made a specialty.

6th. The only place where you can get Tickets at all hours, or have them delivered to your house, office, or place of business, at all times, free of charge.

These are but a few of the many reasons that can be adduced why the citizens of Indianapolis and vicinity should support an outside or city office; and as we have undertaken this new enterprise in the face of the combined influences of the several Railroads centering here and the Union Depot Ticket Office, we can but simply beg the patronage of the travelling public, assuring you that the truthfulness of these suggestions can be seen upon investigation.
